

Fining Speed Demons

"A dollar a mile" is the way City Recorder Ben Yancey, of Rome, is meting justice to automobile speeders. It works this way: If you are caught driving twenty-five miles an hour, you pay 25; if forty miles, $40. The variations being fixed by the speeder himself. And there's "some justice" to that, we'll say.—Cedartown Standard.

Why not make the assessment two dollars a mile when the indicator passes forty?
