

Tune Composed for Donna Mae Strand titled "Donna Mae"

NOTE TO the reader in Eau Claire: No you may not take movies in the stadium, nor even stills. All cameras are barred . . . Donna Mae Strand, the little Washburn high girl who won Mid-Continent Airlines' queen title, may find her name on the sheet music counters of the nation. One of her boy friends, after a date with her, composed a tune which he titled, "Donna Mae." Leroy (Swifty) Erickson, the orchestra leader, has made an arrangement of it and now he and Jack Stelzer, the author, have made arrangements to have Glen Gray, during his Orpheum stay, give the tune a whirl. And such is the way that hits are born . . . Second issue of the magazine Sketch goes on sale today. The little breezy, informal and at times impudent magazine already has quite a history. Two local news writers started the publication on a total capital of 45 cents and a lot of nerve. First issue had the phenomenal sale of 70 per cent in the country. Issue No. 2 has been expanded as a result . . . Andre & Delphine, Apache knock-about dance team, head the Cocanut Grove floor show this week-end and show people they are. Andre has a brand new pink car, Delphine has a new white albino monkey coat. One in 10,000 monkees is an albino and it took 90 skins to make her coat . . . Economy Hint: Save your champagne corks—Gladys McCormick says there's nothing like them for putting polish on your silverware.
