

A Cyclist Knocks a Boy Senseless.

Wednesday night about 8 o'clock two young men were racing down Park avenue on their wheels. When near the corner of Sixteenth street, one of them attempted to turn out of the way of a carriage and ran into little Harry Legg, of 1601 Park avenue, knocking him senseless. When they picked him up they found that he was cut about the head and was bleeding freely. He was carried home and found to be not seriously hurt. The young man recovered in a few minutes and went home on his wheel.
